Joseph Bockerstette:

The 16th hole at the Waste Management Phoenix Open. Absolutely changed our lives. I don't think anybody in the stadium expected Amy to perform as well as she did. She, of course, embraced the moment, loved the crowds. She's been on many speaking engagements to share the message that people with Down syndrome are more capable than we realize.

00:00:54:20 - 00:00:59:25

Joseph Bockerstette:

I think that opened up the idea that folks with intellectual disabilities can learn to play golf.

00:01:00:17 - 00:01:19:27

Tracy Hupko:

The I Got This foundation mission is to bring more opportunities to athletes with intellectual disabilities and impairments. It's a chance for families to realize that those opportunities they were told work for their children really are. Empowering our athletes is all part of building confidence on the course with what they're doing, and that easily carries over into life.

00:01:20:23 - 00:01:31:06

Parker Lane:

Golf is so much fun. I learned so much. I learned how to focus more and how focused on the ball. How focused on the swing.

00:01:31:06 - 00:01:51:22

Shelly Lane:

The I Got This foundation has brought my family closer together. He's speaking more freely. He's not afraid to be out in crowds, meeting new people. These kids don't have a lot of opportunities. And the I Got This foundation has opened up his world.

00:01:51:24 - 00:01:57:20

Tracy Hupko:

To be the recipient of the Grant Thornton Purple Paladin Award is truly an honor and a blessing for us.

00:01:57:22 - 00:02:05:17

Tracy Hupko:

We're a small but mighty organization, and their support will help us reach more corners of the world. To tell our story is a dream come true.

00:02:07:26 - 00:02:17:10

Mel Reid:

Welcome to the team, Amy and friends. Your foundation is doing such cool things to grow the game among those with intellectual disabilities. As I know, you will continue to do great work as a Purple Paladin.

00:02:33:01 - 00:02:41:11

Amy Bockerstette:

I Got This means to stay focused, work hard, play hard, do your best.

We got this.
